We do good!

What does it mean to “do good” for children and families?

Opening doors to new opportunities. Empowering children, teens and families to find – and build upon – strengths so they may rise above challenges and circumstances ... so they may realize their full potential.

Stats

Today, 23 percent of Florida’s kids – nearly one million children – live in extreme poverty.

One in four children will suffer abuse or neglect.

20 percent of children suffer from a mental health challenge that, left untreated, will often lead to unemployment and incarceration later in life.

1 in 5 children suffers from a mental health challenge – and 80% of chronic mental health challenges begin in childhood.

We find these statistics unacceptable. To reshape the future, CHS is working upstream to build bridges to success for these children through innovative solutions and transformative changes in foster care management. No other organization has the size, scope or solution-driven focus that CHS brings to empower more children to cross bridges to success.
